Volleyball

It was a valiant effort by the Bulldogs. Nathan Balbin, the go-to middle hitter for Okkodo and setter Dom Lingat, was pumped for a good showing. Although Tiyan's Skyler Blas and Isaiah Cruz had good blocks against the tallest Bulldog, Balbin got more than a fair share of kills. His supporting cast of Deaven Hudtohan, JP Calma, Dominic David and Joel Sivestre was outnumbered by Tiyan's deceptive weaponry.

As one of the shortest teams, on average, in the 7-team league, the Titans played head and shoulders above that disadvantage. Anchored by outside hitter Gerald Malana's 18 kills, the Titans offered an exhausting offense entirely dependent on passes close to the net. Tiyan has multiple options, and setter Tyrone Buekis knows how to use every one.

We came into this game expecting them to be strong," said Tiyan outside hitter Ashton Aguon. "Yeah, they have a big block. We had to shift, play good defense ... I'm looking forward to challenging them again. They made us bring our A game out and we learned a lot from this game."

The Titans ran stacks — that is, when one player comes in for a quick, followed by another player ready to hit a not-so-quick shot. The stacked shootsets on the outside, quicks in the middle and even quicks on the right side — a difficult setup for Buekis, who is a righty, and looks left to set.

Lingat said the Titans picked apart the Bulldog blocking scheme easily.

"That's something we gotta work on," he said. "We definitely have to read the ball more, reading the pass — just releasing faster."

Both squads entered the match undefeated at 4-0 as the first round robin of games comes to a close next week.
