last year's best player, will continue to carry the scoring load and the return of R.J. Rokop will help. Frankie Tenorio and Zay Sablan round out this dynamic scoring backcourt which has no issues lighting up the scoreboard. Cole Merfalen and Brandon Eusebio will anchor the front court and provide much needed rebounding to get the track meet started.

The return of Jenó Aquino gives '16 a legitimate low post offensive presence. There is no denying this team's talent and ability. But as we have seen in recent years, they find a way to beat themselves and point guard Josh Paulino not being back doesn't help. Could the addition of Shimizu be the final piece to the puzzle, or will this group, again, find a way to lose when it matters most?

2020

Labeled as arguably the best team to complete a high school season, the 2020 boys are back and hungrier than ever. After last year's disappointing loss to 2002/2004, where they blew a double-digit lead in the second half, 2020 is leaning on their recent success to help get over the hump. Colin Santiago anchors the ball handling duties for this team and makes them run like a well-oiled machine.

Christian Leon Guerrero showed everyone last year what an offensive juggernaut he can be and will be relied on to continue to carry the offensive load. But make no mistake about it: Matt Fegurur makes this team different! The 6'9" phenom will be making his alumni tourney debut and after watching his boys helplessly last season, he is ready to make a statement and let the league know who the team to beat is. Elijah Dudkiewicz provides a big body in the middle, while Cisco Uncangco presents another deep threat to give Fegurur the space he needs down low. The ghost of Kyle Camacho still lingers with this team and if he shows, it gives the young bucks another weapon and size down low. Isaiah Pelkey (college) will be missed but this team has more than enough to make another deep run in the playoffs. The question is... can they finish the job this time?
