books. She competed in a heavier bodyweight category, the women's 71kg, setting new records in the class.

Sumagaysay now holds the Guam records in four bodyweight categories: 55kg, 59kg, 64kg and 71kg.

Nicola Lagatao's numbers for this year's championships also were new Guam records for the women's 45kg class. Her numbers over the weekend beat her lifts at the 2022 Pacific Mini Games, where she won gold. The reigning Oceania champion now holds the Guam records for the 45kg and 49kg classes.

Sumagaysay and Lagatao finished first and second overall under the Sinclair formula. The formula uses the total weight lifted as well as a lifter's body weight to determine a rank.

Chloe Santos won the junior division. All three ladies represent Fudoshin Fitness.

In the men's division, Patris' 285 total kilos — 120kg in the snatch and 165kg in the clean and jerk — were 20 kilos more than the next nearest competitor, Leonardo Apelo Jr. from the CNMI.

JOJO SANTO TOMAS PDN
Angelo Macugay makes a successful lift at the Guam Weightlifting Championships Saturday at the Guam Army Guard Readiness Center in Barrigada. Macugay was one of almost 50 lifters, including some from Palau and the Northern Mariana Islands, that competed.

Angel San Nicolas, also of the CNMI, ranked third overall, but his 124 kg in the snatch and 165 kg in the clean and jerk for 289kg total were the highest totals of the 23 male competitors.

The Geckos recovered in the fourth quarter and scored 13 points to the Sharks nine. In fact, the Sharks had just one field goal — a 3-pointer by Jace Dela Cruz. Free throws accounted for the rest.

The Sharks ate up the clock on their final two possessions and the Geckos scored just one basket in the final minute.

Bulldogs advance

At Okkodo, the top-seeded Bulldogs went full throttle from the start, building a lead and increasing it by the end of each quarter.

The Islanders finally outscored the Bulldogs 18-14 in a frenzied fourth quarter as Hendrix De Fiesta scored 11, but Okkodo was too far ahead to change the outcome.

Final games

Friday will decide ISAs final ranking in games at the neutral Southern High School gym. At 5:30 p.m., the Islanders will face the Geckos in the battle for third place, followed by the Sanchez-Okkodo title tilt at 7:30 p.m.

Russia's sports exile persists

One year after the invasion of Ukraine began, Russia's reintegration into the world of sports threatens to create the biggest rift in the Olympic movement since the Cold War.

Russia remains excluded from many international sporting events, but that could soon change. Next year's Paris Olympics are fast approaching and qualifying events are under way. The International Olympic Committee is working to bring athletes from Russia and ally Belarus back into competition, but not everyone agrees.

If Russian athletes are to return to competition, the sports world must resolve two key issues that became clear in the days after the invasion: How can Russian athletes return without alienating Ukrainians? And what can be done about the Russians who support the war?

As the first battles raged, the Ukrainian fencing team refused to compete against Russia at a tournament in Egypt, holding up a sign reading: "Stop Russia! Stop the war! Save Ukraine! Save Europe!"

A year later, one of the biggest obstacles to a Russian return to sports is Ukraine's insistence it could boycott rather than risk handing its enemy a propaganda success or further traumatizing Ukrainian athletes affected by the war. Other European countries have also spoken of boycotting the Olympics if Russians are allowed to participate.

The last major Olympic boycotts came four decades ago when the United States and more than 60 allies skipped the 1980 Moscow Games. The Soviet Union and its allies retaliated by boycotting the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics.

The actions of specific athletes are a separate issue. Russian gymnast Ivan Kuliak taped a "Z" symbol to his chest, mimicking a marking used on the country's military vehicles, while standing on the podium next to the Ukrainian winner at an event in Qatar last March. He was banned for a year.

The IOC now says it will not support the return of Belarusian athletes from events "to protect the integrity of global sports competitions and for the safety of all the participants."

The Russian men's national soccer team was in the World Cup playoffs at the time, hoping to qualify for last year's tournament in Qatar, but Poland refused to play them. Russia was then excluded from the competition — four years after hosting the 2018 tournament and reaching the quarterfinals.

As the Paris Olympics come into view, the IOC has shifted its emphasis to what it says is its duty to avoid discriminating against anyone based on nationality, and to create a path for Russians and Belarusians to compete as neutral athletes without national symbols. Safety
