"What a great sports moment for Guam," said Calvo.

There were few signs that things would go Guam's way. The home crowd energized their team, ranked 102 in the world, against 82nd-ranked Guam which entered — and finished as the only undefeated team in the tournament.

There were eight lead changes in the game, though Guam spent very little time ahead. Guam fell behind early and trailed by as much as 13 points, though they cut the lead to 43-39 at the half.

Tai Wesley's layup in the third quarter made it 53-53 and Guam took its first lead on Tomas Calvo's jumper with two minutes left.

All the storylines converged in the game's final three minutes.

Ross hit a shot from way behind the line to give Guam a 78-75 short-lived lead, but two straight long shots put Mongolia back on top, 81-78.

After Jonathan Galloway hit a free throw, he ran downcourt and rebounded a Mongolia miss.

He was called for an offensive foul when a Mongolian guard ran into his arm. Galloway, who put up Guam's biggest numbers in the tournament, fouled out.

Ben Borja checked in for Guam and responded by blocking Mongolia's next two shot attempts. A bad pass put the ball back into Mongolia's hands with 22

Tai Wesley intercepted a pass, and Ross jogged it downcourt with 16 seconds left. Wesley and Borja rushed to offer screens on both sides. Ross chooses the right side, stops just short of the arc with three seconds left, and lets it fly. It is pure.

As the crowd moaned its dismay, Ross and Co. cheered and yelled. Ross underscored the "GUAM" on the front of his jersey, then put a finger to his mouth to shush the crowd.

Mongolia's final shot was well-defended and woefully short. In the minutes that followed, all players shook hands, and Mongolia's stars clapped for Guam.

"Tonight's win was one we won't forget," said Calvo. "The electricity in the arena was amazing and I'm so proud of our guys for overcoming adversity and continuing to put Guam on the map!"

Team Guam locked arms over shoulders, forming a ring at center court, for Calvo's final words.

One Mongolian player was still on the floor, and when he finally got up, he clapped for Guam too. When Team Guam broke their huddle, they were greeted by a warming sight: thousands of people in the arena, on their feet, with smiles. A standing ovation.
